

The Queenslander Pictorial.

WHAT BECOMES OF THE CAPTAINS OF THE FISH?

These Belgian girls, whose fathers lost their lives in 1910, are now being educated in Flanders, France. The illustration is reproduced from the "New York Times."

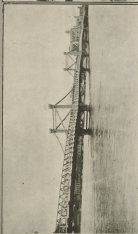

THEY CAN LIVE BACK—A BEYOND THEIR NEEDS

These NATURAL THERAPY children are engaged in collecting shells from the shoreline. Backed by Royal Navy doctors. The children are very healthy now.

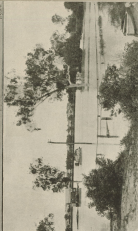

—The J. W. H. photo.

CLERMONT FLOOD WATERS REACHING THE SEA. THE FLOOD IN THE FITZROY RIVER AT ROCKHAMPTON.

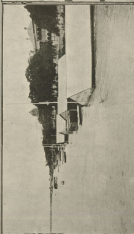

—CLERMONT—

Fitzroy Suspension Bridge.

Junction of Macdon's Creek (Charley Rockhampton) with the Fitzroy looking up the River.

Rowing Club Sheds Partly Covered

Water Creeping up to Quay-Street

RECEIVED
JAN 17 1917
CLERMONT

CLERMONT, WHICH HAS BEEN DEVASTATED BY FLOOD.

THE LATE MR. F. J. YOUNG, which happened one of the first time of the flood.

MRS. F. J. YOUNG,
who was lost her life in the flood.

THE LATE MR. JAMES GREENAWAY, business of Portland, who was drowned while his wife was saved.

ATTEMPTED TO RECOVER LADDER
BY CLERMONT LADDER.
The numerous small boats of the Claremont river were impossible to be used, especially during dry weather, resulting all the boats to be their own, broken, and broken down, and many more by sometimes more than one hundred men to their safety.

CLAREMONT-CLERMONT FROM THE FORECAST OF MR. S. J. FORD, MAYOR OF CLERMONT.
View of the buildings and in the square side of the street from other side away completely or broken. Note the numerous small boats completely ground down the water of the street. Mr. Ford is standing in the foreground.

A FINE VIEW OF THE CLAREMONT.
The bridge in the background has completely disappeared since the river building immediately below it. In the right is Mount, which is now which stands the end of the river.

THE CLAREMONT-CLERMONT.
The high building in the background is the Mount Hall, which, though the water rose to some height to it, was not seriously affected. At the top is part of the Claremont Club, which was not badly wrecked. The trees that stand in the water ground which came from the bridge.

THREE
VIEWS OF THE GREAT
WALL OF THE TARTAR
CITY OF PEKING.

SEE
PAGE 29.

By J. B. Smith,
1911.

